

Cement Manufacturing For Off-Line Managers

Objective

In modern business management non-technical services play an immeasurable role in operation success. Cooperation between technical and non-technical is the basic element of this success. This course provides the off-line managers and senior staff members in the non-technical departments with knowledge and information necessary to establish the common language leading to mutual understanding which in turn yields to fruitful cooperation. Additionally, knowing and understanding the basic knowledge and information which is provided by the course gives the off-line managers and seniors the global scope of the cement industry. This global scope results in better performance in their own fields.

Participants

Off-line managers and seniors in non-technical departments.

Course Outlines:

- History of Cement Industry
- Raw Materials
- Grinding Systems
- Pyro process Technology
- Material Handling and Storage
- Pollution Control
- Industry Economics
- Project visibility study
- Future of Cement Industry